

Dear sirs,

My home is my castle.

I hope everyone reading this understands what I mean and agrees with me. I do not want people I do not know calling me for things they want but I do not. I want to mind my own business and I want them to keep their business to themselves.

Indiana has had a strong and very effective "do not call" law. Because of this law, I receive almost no undesirable phone calls at my home. The Consumer Bankers Association petition would allow telemarketing to customers they have an "established business relationship" with.

My ignorance of their additional services is my bliss. Just say no. Keep Indiana's do not call law strong. Keep the barbarians out of the castle.

Mark V. Fletcher, M.D.